MISSION CENTRE PRESIDENT'S THOUGHTS

Mission Prayer

God, where will your spirit lead today?
Help me be fully awake and ready to respond.
Grant me courage to risk something new
And become a blessing of your love and peace.
Amen.

“God, Where Will Your Spirit Lead?” emphasizes the importance of our spiritual practices where we, as God’s creation, strives to pause daily from our busy lives to listen to God’s inner voice for our journey into our future. God’s Mission as our Mission is far more than an eloquent phrase! It is who we are as a community of believers. At the core of the Community of Christ we are all called to be consensus builders calling us into developing better listening skills. Truly listening to one another’s stories and appreciating each other’s journey is the template for re-connecting to our loving God who has done so much for each of us over our varying years of existence. In my humble opinion, God loved us so much that he called us into existence at this period in history to be ambassadors of change, ambassadors of listening to the Holy, and moving forward into action.

The Enduring Practice of “Continuing Revelation” focuses on God’s revelation of God’s divine will for us today, individually and collectively, as a Mission. God never gives us an opportunity to complete things without the promise of the Holy Spirit inspiring us and witnessing/sharing solutions for the journey ahead. We are prayerfully called to listen to and try to understand God’s will as we move forward. Our scriptures give us many witnesses of past human experience to the call and response of God in their lives. This day and during this Mission Conference and more importantly in our futures, we are invited daily to ask the question, “God, where will your spirit lead today?” and then be ready to RESPOND to God’s call with God’s assurance and strength for fulfilment.
